BEST PRACTICES

Best Practice : 1

1. Title of the practice : In-plant training
2. Objective of Practice:

The students of the Engineering colleges are exposed to the practical aspects of Engineering only through laboratory experiments. However, there is always a wide gap between laboratory conditions and actual practices. In view of enriching the practical knowledge of students and bridging the gap between academics and actual industrial practices, College of Engineering, Pune has introduced unique feature in the curriculum. Under this activity, every student must undertake in-plant training of 45 days in the relevant industries. Such in-plant training provides an industrial exposure to the students and develop their career in tune with the requirements of high-tech industries.

3. The Context:

With the constraint of keeping duration of engineering programme in accordance with that of the University it was difficult to decide period for in-plant training. After the VI Semester, normally students get 20 days vacation before commencement of the next semester. Further, by making minor changes in number of courses (subjects), the seventh semester could be started late by 25 days. This period could be utilized for the in-plant training of the students. Accordingly, number of subjects in seventh semester is reduced by one and its commencement delayed by 25 days. Thus, in-plant training of 45 days is introduced in course structure.

The in-plant training starts in June and ends in first week of August. This helps students make themselves available for the placement session which normally starts from the month of September.

4. The Practice:

At the commencement of the sixth semester, the coordinator of this activity gets in touch with various industries located nearby the city and prominent industries from distant places as well, requesting them to offer in-plant training to students. On receipt of the consent from industries, the list of industries is made available to students to choose from and data of the interested students are sent to the concerned industries which gives final nod to selection of students.

On completion of theory examination of semester VI, students join the allotted industry and undertake the training as per the schedule prepared by the industry. Few industries offer some mini projects, whereas few offer a structured induction training to students. Students maintain a log book, a specially designed activity record book, which is duly signed by the training supervisor assigned to him by the industry. One faculty from the department is also assigned as a training supervisor who is in constant touch with students. Students keep reporting the progress on weekly basis through email. This helps in solving problems faced by students by contacting the supervisor from the industry, as well as tracking the progress of students.

On successful completion of the training, students join back to institute to complete the remaining two semesters of the program. He prepares a detailed report of his training and submits the same to the department. At the end of semester VII, the student appears for a via voce examination, which helps in assessing the knowledge of the student acquired during training program. The external examiner appointed for this assessment is invariably the person from industry.

5. Evidence of Success:

Since introduction of this practice, it has been observed that the interest of students in learning the courses has increased considerably. They could experience the application of theory in real life situation in industry and thus bridging the gap between academics and industry. Further this has helped in enhancing the placement in various industries.

6. Problems encountered, and resources required:

The major problems faced are related to placing students in the companies of their choice. Usually students give preference to MNCs for their placement. However, number of students to be admitted for in-plant training per company are limited. This issue may be sorted out by considering the performance of students in the university examinations.

Few of the students do not undertake the training seriously and do not perform to the expectations of the industry. The concerned industry refuses to offer in plant training to students in subsequent academic years. However, this number is very small, and institute needs to take additional efforts to sort out issues of this kind.

Though no special infrastructure or resources are required to undertake this activity, dedicated efforts from faculty members are required to maintain good rapport with industries offering in plant training to students.

Best Practice : 2

1. Title of the Practice: Tobacco Intervention Initiative Center
2. Objectives of the Practice:
 - a. Tobacco Intervention Initiative (TII) is a professionally-led "call to action" programme to eradicate tobacco addiction while striving for a 'tobacco free India' and thus improving the oral health of Indians.
 - b. Tobacco use and smoking in particular, causes many of the chronic and debilitating diseases that affect the population and stress the national health-care system. It is proposed to spread awareness amongst the people through this centre by helping the patients to quit smoking and chewing tobacco habits.
3. The Context:

Considering the consequences of smoking and chewing tobacco the core committee of the department decided to establish Tobacco Intervention Initiative Center in the institute.
4. The Practice:

Institute has been authorized by Indian Dental Association (IDA) as an official Tobacco Intervention Initiative Center. Indian Dental Association (IDA) provides free material and kits to the institute. Provision for a separate area for TII center is made next to OPD so that patients with tobacco abuse habits can approach the center voluntarily. Institute has certified TII specialists who regularly counsel these patients.

Patients are graded for their dependency towards nicotine (Smoking and Smokeless), by Fagerstrom Criteria. Once the patient is graded for their dependency, patient is counselled in phases :

 - a. Phase 1: Behavior counselling
 - b. Phase 2: Behavior counselling + Medication
 - c. Phase 3: Behavior counselling + Nicotine replacement therapy
 - d. Phase 4 Behavior counselling+ Nicotine replacement therapy + Medication

All patients are reviewed on weekly and monthly recall visits and treated accordingly.
5. Evidence of Success
 - a. Widely accepted by patients with tobacco abuse
 - b. Positive feedback by patients.
6. Problem Encountered and Resource Required
Problem Encountered :
 - a. Patients' reluctance in accepting their habit as addiction.
 - b. Lack of awareness of tobacco abuse in low socioeconomic strata.
 - c. Educating and motivating patient to quit habits is sometimes difficult task.
 - d. All patients are not regular on their recall visits.

Resources Required for TII Center :

- a. BVDU Dental College and Hospital, Pune is equipped with the necessary supportive custom made infrastructure which is well ventilated. Self explanatory charts in both marathi and english languages are displayed. Booklets and other educational materials are made available to patients for understanding the consequences of smoking and chewing tobacco habits.
- b. Power point presentations of hazards of tobacco are prepared for better understanding of patients.
- c. A separate provision of counselling room with functional laptops having internet facility exists.
